

2,240 TONS OF BOMBS RAINED ON BRUNSWICK

Berlin And Magdeburg Hit By Diversionary Attacks During Night

These sources said the assault on Magdeburg was the "heaviest yet."

American Air Force headquarters in Britain meanwhile revealed that 27 Nazi planes were shot down by American heavy and medium bombers and fighters during yesterday's record-breaking air offensive against the French invasion coast. Thirteen U. S. planes were lost, including three heavy bombers, three fighter-bombers and seven fighters.

Nine Nazi planes were smashed by the Fortresses and Liberators; 14 by U. S. Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs and four others by Marauders and their escorting fighters.

Yanks Do Well

The communiqué said the Forts and Liberators "attacked all assigned targets in clear weather and good results were reported against weak enemy opposition."

The German DNB agency said American planes joined the RAF in pounding Germany last night, but London sources gave no indication that Yank planes operated after dark.

The London Evening News, declaring that "the battle of Germany is on again," said "hundreds" of huge bombers attacked vital German industrial targets during the night. Brunswick, Berlin and Magdeburg were hit Tuesday in the record-breaking American daylight assault against Germany in which some 1,300 planes participated.

An indication of the size of the attacking air fleet was given by observers on England's east and southeast coasts who reported that great processions of heavy bombers roared toward Europe last evening in such numbers that the armadas took 45 minutes to pass.

Blast at Balkans

In the Balkans, other Allied bombers were active. In support of Yugoslav partisan forces battling the German occupation army, fighter escorted raiders dropped a "large number" of high explosive and fragmentation bombs on hangars and runways at the Nazi-held airfield of Mostar in central Herzegovina province.

Mostar is a rail and river town situated some 48 miles southwest of Sarajevo.

On the Italian land front, meantime, French units of the Fifth Army stormed and seized the enemy's mountain stronghold of Acquafredda, seven and one-half miles northeast of the Cassino gateway to Rome.

The French police and knife-wielding Moroccan Goumiers continued their advance and took three heights dominating the area northeast of the key German base, and smashed to within five miles of the Atina-Cassino road. This route is one of the last two remaining supply roads for Cassino's beleaguered garrison.

These new French victories resulted in the virtual surrounding of the enemy's fortified village of Viticuso, which lies about seven miles northeast of Cassino.

Two Russian armies threatened to trap German forces in the vastness of the frozen Pripiet marshes. One Soviet spearhead drove as far as 20 miles west of the fallen Nazi bastions of Kalinkovichi and Mozyr in White Russia, and another Red Army force to the southeast was within 38 miles north of the big communications hub of Rovno, deep in old Poland.

Stiff German resistance and numerous counterattacks around Vinnitsa in the Dnieper bend failed to stop the Russian drive toward the key Odessa-Lwow railroad.

In the southwest Pacific, Australian artillery bombarded the Japs' supply base of Sio, where Aussies and Yanks were closing a trap on the enemy.

Rail Wage Dispute In Final Stage

certain whether this action would affect efforts of the wage board to bring about an early settlement of the non-operating case.

Settlement of the case of the three "holdout" operating unions was announced by the White House in a letter from President Roosevelt to J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads.

"I think it important for the future relations of the carriers and employees that any settlement with the firemen, conductors and switchmen should be identical with the two other brotherhoods," Mr. Roosevelt said.

It was understood, however, that all vestiges of a "freeze" on wages were removed in the agreement signed by the three operating unions. The nine cent figure includes a four cents hourly increase in wage rates plus 5 cents in lieu of overtime and lay-over expenses away from home. In case of the trainmen and engineers, who accepted the President's arbitration Christmas Eve, the five cent overtime award was frozen for the duration of the war. The conductors, switchmen and firemen opposed any such freeze.

GAS EMERGENCY PASSES IN AREA

unless and until the gas is secured.

The Gas Company warned that as winter advances emergency conditions may occur during increasingly mild weather. It is possible that it will be necessary to declare an emergency condition when average daily temperatures are only 20 degrees this month, perhaps as warm as 25 degrees next month.

Face Big Problem

The problem of maintaining adequate pressures in distribution lines and preventing gas outages to customers will be a serious threat in all emergencies. Every cubic foot of gas that customers can save for the remainder of the winter will help lessen the frequency and severity of those occasions. To date this winter relatively few industries engaged in war work have been affected by the gas shortage. As more severe weather is experienced, emergencies will arrive which certainly will force curtailment of additional industries, many of them engaged in critical war work. The continued efforts of gas customers to save gas each day will hold these interruptions to a minimum.

Customers are asked to start restricting their day-to-day uses of gas in the following manner:

Heating

Conscientiously make 65 degrees your accepted wartime living temperature. Close off every part of your home or place of business that you can do without. Depend entirely on coal or oil if either of those is the regular method of heating your premises.

Those who use gas ovens, radiant fires or other gas heaters to supplement heating plants using coal or oil are perhaps the greatest threat to gas service under present conditions. When tempted to use gas heat for such purposes ask yourself if the room cannot be shut off instead. You are counted on not to use gas for supplemental heating.

Water Heating

Be very conservative in your use of hot water. Do not use it wastefully just because it is available.

Those with manually controlled heaters should turn up the flame only when hot water is needed for laundry or bathing, then reduce the flame or turn it out as quickly as possible.

Avoid washing hands or dishes in running hot water.

Cooking

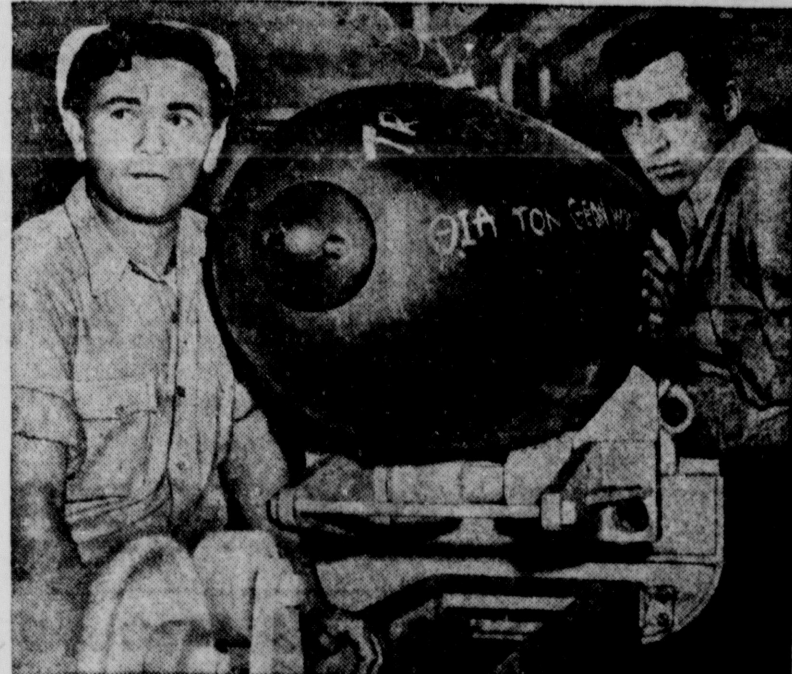

Combine as much of your cooking as possible so that more food can be cooked with the same amount of gas. Use the oven for preparing several hot dishes instead of separate top burners.

Do not turn the gas higher than is needed to maintain cooking heavily. Tracer fire which set them afire earlier in the war is ineffective now."

General Hale pointed out that ground defenses are intact on islands held by the Japs for twenty years, and explained that "neutralization" meant the destruction of airfield facilities making the base useless for Jap planes. Even carefully prepared underground areas must be knocked out. The Marshalls ground defenses are of the same type but greater than those in the Gilberts.

temperatures. Turn out gas immediately when cooking is finished.

The War Production Board and the War Department join the Gas company in expressing appreciation for the cooperation the public is giving. The self-restricted uses of gas as outlined will show continued support to the war effort as well as a determined interest in helping maintain gas service. Customers still are advised to make arrangements with neighbors for gaining entrance to their homes in case gas outages occur when they are away. Also, they are asked to be alert continually for the next gas emergency which may come at any time.

ballots that anyone won't vote."

"There have been more mis-statements made about this issue than any in a long time, the Alabama asserted. 'Not many people seem to know that if we had a federal ballot the soldiers would only get to vote for president, vice president senators and congressmen and the names of these candidates would not even be on the ballot. They would have to be written in.'

"The truth of the matter is that soldiers might get to cast a ballot under the federal proposal, but thousands of them would never be counted because of conflict with state laws. If the states are allowed to handle the problem, there is no reason why every soldier, at home and abroad, cannot vote and have his vote counted if he is a qualified voter."

HARRY J. MERZ, MILL FOREMAN, DIES SUDDENLY

Harry J. Merz, 58, a native and lifelong resident of Circleville and truck loading foreman at the John W. Eshelman and Sons Milling Co. for the last 12 years, died suddenly Friday at 7:30 p. m. at his home, 509 East Mound street.

Mr. Merz had been ill for several days, but went back to his work Friday noon. After supper Friday evening he told Mrs. Merz and their daughter, Margie, that he felt better than he had for several days, but that he thought he would go to bed. He died only a few minutes after going upstairs.

The funeral will be Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the Albaugh Co. chapel, the Rev. G. L. Troutman officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. Pall bearers will include Gene Davis, Ren Mumaw, Charles Styers, William McCrady, Carl Purcell and Lawrence Styers.

Friends may call at the Albaugh chapel Sunday evening.

Mr. Merz was born February 17, 1885, a son of John and Matilda Doering Merz. He married Florence Styers in Circleville February 17, 1907. Survivors include Mrs. Merz, the daughter, Margie, and two brothers, Clarence and Carl, both of Circleville.

Mr. Merz was a member of the Masonic organization and of Trinity Lutheran church.

ton quarters that it may be possible to persuade Moscow to resume diplomatic relations with the Poles which the Soviet government severed in May of last year as a result of a series of disagreements.

Very careful consideration is being given by the State department to that part of the Polish statement which proposes that the American and British governments participate in any negotiation held between Poland and Russia.

The American government may be disposed to use its good offices to get the Poles and Russians back on speaking terms, but there is reason to believe it would be reluctant to assume any direct responsibility for the settlement which Poland may finally make with Russia.

The Polish move to have the American and British governments participate in the negotiation was seen aimed at getting Anglo-American support against the more extreme Soviet demands. This government would prefer to avoid being placed in the position of taking sides in the Russo-Polish dispute.

DEADLINE AT HAND FOR OVERSEAS VALENTINES

Persons wishing to send Valentine greetings to army and navy personnel overseas had better get them into the postoffice Saturday. Greetings mailed today will be delivered by February 14. Cards mailed later may get to their destinations in time, but the War and Navy departments express doubt whether they will reach distant stations in time.

COLLEGE, OFFICE, FACTORY

SENDING girls to college has come to be taken, in this country, almost as a matter of course. Until the war broadened and deepened, thousands of girls would never have thought of not going to college. Now a different viewpoint seems to be developing.

Dr. Bancroft Beatley, president of Simmons College, in Boston, addressing a college club in the Middle West, makes the surprising statement that "in a large number of cases the experience is of little value, and even harmful."

A successful college career, he explains, requires "intelligence, social maturity, physical stamina and a real purpose." He insists that parents should not arbitrarily send their daughters to college, but should do so only when the girls' abilities and needs really justify it. Life now offers, he says, many kinds of educational opportunities that are just as valuable.

This view will comfort many a girl who has thought a college education essential. And there needn't be any "sour grapes" about it, either. Certainly thousands of girls today, in work of a hundred kinds, are developing and broadening their minds and acquiring fine skills, while giving useful service to the community.

THE war is helping at least one class, the aging ballplayers. The year 1944 will see more 40-year-olds in the big leagues than ever before. Johnny Cooney of Brooklyn is 43, and will be back. So will Paul Waner at 41, striving to add to his lifetime total of more than 3,000 hits. Al Simmons, also 41, is returning to the scene of his original triumphs, the Philadelphia Athletics. Bill Dickey of the New York Yankees will be playing his 22nd year in organized baseball, and Mel Ott of the New York Giants his 19th. Normally many of the above would find the pace too swift; with a manpower shortage they can hold their own.

Last year's teams, says Ford Frick, president of the National League, were made up of "pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, some 4-F's, some plus-38's, and some sub-19's. This year will see fewer fathers and more of the others.

If the war goes on, 81-year-old Connie Mack, who is managing the Athletics from the bench, may have to hunt up his old catcher's mask and get behind the bat.

The Soviet keeps rolling along, and this is the year when Hitler gets flattened out.

Was there ever anything so beautiful as a new automobile tire?

Fighting Men Say Tarawa Toll Not Too Heavy Cost
Somervell "Squeeze Play" During Railroad Crisis
Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—Fighting men back from the American invasion of the Gilbert islands believe firmly that the United States did not pay too high a price in casualties for the capture of Tarawa. Even laymen would understand the heavy cost, they insist, if they could have seen the defenses the Japs had installed—especially on the main island of Betio.
Some Navy and Marine officers also feel that the stories about the fighting there stressed the high American casualties—more than 1,000 killed—without pointing out strongly enough that the entire enemy force of 6,000 men was wiped out. Betio was garrisoned by 4,000 Jap marines, who are trained especially for island warfare. Yet, American Marines wiped out all resistance in about three days.
Some quarters insist that the final casualty count will be somewhat lower than first thought due to later check-ups on wounded and missing who were picked up by Naval craft. American casualties would have been much heavier except for the fact that Army and Navy airmen swept Japanese planes from the skies while United States warships protected transports from possible attack by surface vessels.
MOST OBSERVERS credit Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell with a neat "squeeze play" during the rail strike crisis. Somervell, commanding general of the Army Service Forces, was handed the job of running the railroads when the government seized them Dec. 27. When the three last-ditch hold-out operating unions talked with the general 18 hours before the strike deadline, they undoubtedly agreed that they would not strike against the government.
However, they wanted to retain the threat of a strike as a bargaining point to get a wage adjustment and proposed to withhold formal announcement that the strike was settled until the last possible moment. Somervell and Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

BARBER-CHAIR PARLEY

WASHINGTON—Those on the inside say that most of the trouble regarding rail wages and even the seizure of the railroads might have been avoided if the President had not been in the barber's chair when last Summer, he discussed wages with George Harrison, head of the railroad clerks.

Genial "Pa" Watson, guardian of all White House appointments, unfortunately let the railroad labor leader in to see the President at the end of a busy day when he was getting a shave.

Tired and relaxed, Roosevelt was stretched out in the barber's chair with lather all over his face. He talked to Harrison between strokes of the razor, which meant that he didn't talk very much. Harrison did most of the talking and said that the railroad non-operating workers should have a wage increase of 8 cents an hour, plus 6 cents an hour for overtime.

He came away from the White House with the definite impression that the President agreed to this. As a result, all rail workers, both operating and non-operating, expected a proportionate raise and were boiling mad when Economic Stabilizer Vinson found that it violated the Little Steel formula and anti-inflation policies.

Ever since then, Harrison and associates have stuck to the promise which Harrison believed the President gave while he was being shaved.

HULL FOR PRESIDENT

White-thatched, conservative Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa had a private chat with Secretary of State Cordell Hull last week that would have made headlines had the circumstances leaked out.

The Iowa Democrat put it up to Hull very bluntly that he should be the Democratic nominee for the Presidency this year.

Gillette is a member of the senate foreign relations committee, and went to the State department ostensibly to discuss international questions. However, the meeting quickly got down to some straight talk about politics.

After commending the 72-year-old cabinet officer for the "national acclaim" he had won by his recent mission to Moscow, Gillette added that Hull was one of the few men who commanded the "respect and affection" of all factions of the Democratic party. Then he got down to brass tacks.

"Mr. Secretary," he said, "I don't suppose it is any secret that there are many members of congress who would like to see you as the next Democratic nominee."

The Iowa added that he had been given to understand that President Roosevelt would not seek a fourth term, in which case Hull should feel free to accept the nomination.

Hull didn't say yes, and he didn't say no. He replied that he appreciated the compliment, but that he had no ambitions beyond that of finishing out his duties as secretary of state and helping to win the peace. He also said he was getting pretty old and indicated that he would prefer to make no commitments, at least until the President had spoken out on a fourth term.

Gillette later told intimates that the secretary had by no means closed the door against a nomination bid.

NOTE: Gillette's call on Hull coincided significantly with a behind-the-scenes movement by conservative Democratic sen-

Effect of Hot Baths

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know whether the Turkish Bath is harmful to high blood pressure or low blood pressure. My first reaction to this is where is he going to find a Turkish bath.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

bath. I presume a few specimens of this almost extinct ornament to the regular life of the Gay Nineties still exist in the underground passages of decaying old hotels, but they rate for rarity with the Dodo.

I remember them. A double row of cots in the hot room, occupied by large gentlemen adorned with towels (of course, Turkish) about their middles, reading The Police Gazette and quaffing an occasional glass of water brought by an attendant who was invariably called Mack. And the bather would leave the establishment reeking with his sense of virtue, feeling that he had made all obligations to Hygieia, and prepared to light candles on the altar of Bacchus.

Long Hot Baths

Them wicked days are gone forever, in most localities. The American domestic bath tub killed the Turkish bath, just as certainly as if the two countries had gone to war. And the American hot bath is only a less glorified and usually less prolonged Turkish bath, so we can apply the question to hot bathing. And many people with high blood pressure take long hot baths with the idea that they are taking a cure.

The only feature of the Turkish bath not reproduced by the American hot tub is the hot air room where often the temperature was up to 150 to 170 degrees Fahrenheit.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Himrod of Wauseon, Mrs. Delos Marcy and daughter, Miriam Sue, and Miss Wilmina Phebus of Circleville left for a motor trip to Florida where they were to spend three weeks at Wauchula.

Red and Black cagers overcame a balky start to win a took the wind out of their sails by publicly proclaiming their intention of dropping the strike.

Thereafter—for eight hours until the strike order formally was rescinded by the unions in telegrams to field offices—the three union chiefs labored in vain for a wage settlement. The general wouldn't talk wages. President Roosevelt had a cold. War Mobilization Director James Byrnes, whom the unions do not like, was evasive.

The government was adamant. It would not discuss wages until the strike threat was buried and the union chiefs were up against a stone wall. Their knuckles were being rapped for holding out so long and finally they were forced to give in.

THE NATION'S BADLY DISTRIBUTED SUPPLY of livestock feed will be in better and more normal supply in all parts of the country in about six months. The War Food Administration is working out a long-range program to iron the kinks out of the vital feed situation which has helped cause butter and milk shortages for several months. One of the principal levers WFA will use is expected to be prompt action against hoarding of feed ingredients by mixers.

Although this and other measures will relieve the pressure on milk production somewhat, it will not correct the situation entirely. Farmers also are finding it increasingly difficult to obtain experienced dairy labor.

POLITICOS AND PERHAPS THE NATION generally have taken it for granted that President Roosevelt is very much in the picture for a fourth term nomination, but apparently it is not so widely understood that Vice President Henry A. Wallace is very much in the picture for second place on the Democratic ticket.

Intimates of the vice president say he would like to go along with President Roosevelt should he stand for another four years on Pennsylvania avenue. Wallace is considered one of the best links the administration has with the more extreme wing of the New Dealers.

Wallace has been touring the country delivering speeches that political observers stamp as definitely indicating that he does not intend, if he can help it, to be shoved aside at the 1944 Democratic convention for War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes, House Speaker Sam Rayburn or another person considered more conservative and in tune with the times.

Yankee Senorita
BY LORENA CARLETON
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY

EVEN THOUGH she was impatient to talk with Tod Patrick, Mallory did not mind that the days of instantaneous long distance telephone calls had been swallowed by war priorities. The interval of waiting gave her time to get still more angry, to fill her mind with what she was going to say to him. Also, it gave her the time to get better acquainted with her lavish apartment.

There were no tourist-style furnishings, no mats, tin lamps, gaudy scrapes, feather pictures. Instead, there were valuable pieces of carved furniture, massive and ancient, that somehow worked in admirably with the brand new white plaster walls, and the light woodwork. There were two good paintings by some Mexican artist, a wood-carved Madonna, a handsome gold-framed mirror, some pieces of Bohemian glass. That was the living room. The other rooms were proportionately beautiful.

Prism was shuffling about in total possession as if she had lived there always. "Take your bath now," she ordered the girl. "I got it all run and two of them fizz cubes in it. The pink kind like that I like."

"All right," Mallory replied absent-mindedly, and walked in the opposite direction. She went out on the balcony and gazed down at Reforma boulevard.

Although there was no moon, the night was bright with stars, lights from the street and automobile lamps, and the glitter of hotel and apartment windows. Cars moved as swiftly as on Michigan avenue toward Chapultepec park on the side where Mallory looked down, toward Juarez avenue and the downtown sections, on the opposite side of the wide boulevard.

There was a continuous swinging of traffic about the "glorietas"—of immense circular plots built around decorative statues or monuments that are spotted regularly along the famous street.

Prism trailed the girl. "You get in there and take that bath before all the perfume fizz gets out of it." "I will. I will," Mallory's impatience melted as she looked downward again. "Isn't this an exciting town, Prism? Where were we earlier tonight was as primitive as ancient Spain. This is as cosmopolitan as anything around Central park. It's so exhilarating. Prism."

"And cold-giving," too, I'll bet," Prism predicted gloomily. "Standin' out here in 'othin' but three yards of silk. Gettin' so slap-happy you ain't even got sense enough to put on your coat."

"Very well, Prism, I'll go in." With reluctance the girl turned away from the scene below her. "You know, you're a worse slave driver than Tod Patrick."

"Mr. Patrick's a mighty smart man—well he is!" she yelled in defiance of her mistress' frigid glance.

Mallory did not bother to berate her manager to Prism. She was saving her petulance for the telephone call. However, to ease herself to some extent, she said in the manner of a rebellious child, "I'm going back out on the balcony later."

Bits on Books

By Enid Denham

If you have some loved one, a brother, son, sweetheart, or friend in the army, you will enjoy Sergeant Marsden's "Khaki is More Than a Color", a day by day account of army life of a typical selectee—what he thinks, what he does, how he spends his time, what, above all, makes him love army life. This is the honest story of the army man, realistic, sentimental, humorous.

Some years back D. E. Stevenson wrote two delightful stories of characters in Silverstream, "Miss Buncle's Book" and "Miss Buncle Married." We were afraid that character had become lost in the stress of wartime England, but here is a new one about that same irrepressible Barbara Buncle and her niece—"The Two Mrs. Abbotts." Barbara Abbott is our same Miss Buncle of the old Silverstream days with her own golden boy Simon who could remember when there were bananas and cream in England. A delightful book full of sparkle and zest.

In the early twenties, Cornelia Otis Skinner and her best friend Emily Kimbrough just out of college took an unchaperoned trip to Europe, armed with Baedekers and guide books. "Our Hearts were Young and Gay" is the account of that venture. The book became a best seller and it was inevitable that the authors should follow it to Hollywood, while it was being screened. "We Followed our Hearts to Hollywood", is the hilarious story of this visit told by Emily Kimbrough, their blundering adventures in that amazing wonderland that is Hollywood. You'll like it.

Edwin Way Teale, the author of "Grassroot Jungles" and many other books on nature, has written the life story of his own earlier years in the "Dune Boy", his life in Wisconsin with Gram and Gramp, two of the most lovable grandparents possible. It was characteristic of the impulsive Gram that she had been known to throw a mop at a cat that tracked her own freshly scrubbed floor only to weep because she hit it. Gramp was friendly and good-humored. Together they gave the

Jesus Answers His Critics

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 16 is Mark 2:15-3:35. The Golden Text being Matt. 5:11. "Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.")

YOU REMEMBER our last lesson ended when Jesus called Levi, the publican, to follow Him. We know Levi as Matthew.

Matthew made a great feast for Jesus at his house and many were invited, including, probably, some publicans who had been associated with Levi in collecting taxes from their countrymen for the Roman masters. The Pharisees, those chronic enemies of Jesus, and the scribes, asked His disciples, "How is it that He eateth with publicans and sinners?" The word "sinners" does not mean that any of these men were guilty of crimes, but that they were not accepted by the orthodox Jewish church as acceptable from their legalistic standpoint.

Jesus' answer was one of the most precious in the whole record of His teaching. He said, "They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but the sinners to repentance."

Pharisees Silenced

That silenced them on that point, but immediately they asked why Jesus' disciples did not fast. The disciples of John the Baptist and the Pharisees fasted, why not his? Jesus answered that He, the Bridegroom, was with them, so why should they fast frequently? The law ordered a fast once a year, but the Pharisees had multiplied fast days so that they fasted twice a week, and even the disciples of John (then in prison) had fasted frequently.

One day He, their Master, would not be with them, and then they could fast often, but in His presence there was no need to fast, but to be joyful. You don't sew a rent in an old garment with new material, do you? He asked, or put new wine into old bottles? Old bottles would be worn and the fermentation of the new wine would burst them, so new wine would go into new bottles that would stretch and hold it.

One Sabbath Jesus and His disciples were walking in a grain field near Capernaum, where most of these scenes took place. As the men walked and talked some of them picked the grains of wheat and ate them. This was another way of breaking the strict Jewish laws, according to the scribes and Pharisees "Behold, why do they on the Sabbath that which is not lawful?" they asked.

Jesus reminded them that in their own scriptures it was recorded that when David and those that were with him were hungry, they went into the temple and ate the shew bread that was supposed to be eaten only by the priests. "And He said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. Therefore the Son of Man is Lord also of the Sabbath."

Sees Man With Withered Hand

After that Jesus entered the synagogue and beheld there a man with a withered hand. The Pharisees were there, too, watching to see if they could trip Him, if He would heal the man on the Sabbath. Jesus told the man to stand forth, and when he did so, Jesus turned to His enemies and said, "Is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath days, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill?" But no one answered. Then Jesus told the man to stretch forth his hand, and he did so and the hand was made whole. He was grieved and angered at their hardness of heart.

Jesus and His disciples withdrew to the Sea of Galilee, and great multitudes followed them, and He healed many. Here He also chose His 12 disciples to be trained and taught to carry His message to all the people after He had left them.

Among the persons whom Jesus healed were many afflicted with evil spirits which Jesus cast out. But the Scribes came down from Jerusalem and said it was the power of Satan, not of God, through which He cast them out. Jesus asked them how Satan could work against himself? He also told them what was the unpardonable sin to blaspheme against the Holy Ghost, but is in danger of eternal damnation. This He said because they accused Him of having "an unclean spirit." Blasphemy indeed!

One more incident of this time and we are finished, as our lesson is long. His mother and brethren came to the house where Jesus was and sent word that they wanted to talk with Him, but Jesus said, "Who is My mother or My brethren?" Looking around Him at His disciples and followers He stated, "Behold My mother and My brethren! For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is My brother, and My sister and mother." He doubtless loved His earthly parents and brothers and sister, but no kin folk could claim Him. His mission was to all the world. Those who so needed Him were therefore His family.

ASHVILLE

Over 100 men, who attended the annual Ashville-Lockbourne Lutheran Brotherhood banquet Wednesday, pronounced it "one of the best ever". Music was furnished by Ellen Johnson, Conrad Johnson, Billy Speakman, Jerry Trego, Jack Irwin, and Jim Irwin. The principal speaker, Prof. Cottoman of Capital University, entertained with his witty speech entitled "Just Around the Corner". Prof. Cottoman's theme was that he didn't know just what was around the corner but that he was certain that it would be something different and better than the present. The Toastmaster, C. A. Higley, called on several local people for extemporaneous remarks. Among those responding were: E. F. Martin, E. C. Hufey, James Hufey, Rev. H. D. Fudge, Will Fischer, S. J. Bowers, James Barch, Harry Margulis, Paul Kuhlwein, and Rev. H. O. Harbaugh.

The height of something or other was reached recently when the clerk of the Yuma, Arizona, Superior Court received a request from a Los Angeles man for a certified copy of a marriage license issued in 1939 to himself and "a lady whose name I have forgotten".

Supt. C. A. Higley announced Friday that the elementary grades had collected over two tons of scrap paper, 1/2 ton of iron, and about 250 pounds of rubber during the last three weeks. These youngsters have exhibited quite a bit of enthusiasm in their efforts to aid the scrap drive and some classes have done remarkably well. The drive will be concluded Tuesday; anyone having waste paper or other scrap material should get in touch with some of the grade youngsters before that date.

Ashtville—D. H. Ebert has returned from a six-weeks' visit with his son, Charles, at Los Angeles, California.

Ashtville—Charles Glick, well-known farmer residing east of Ashville for many years, suffered a fatal heart attack Friday evening. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Dora A. Baum of Ashville.

LaMOTTA TAKES ZIVIC IN DETROIT CONTEST

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 15.—Jake La Motta, of the Bronx, N. Y., won his third decision over Welterweight Fritz Zivich of Pittsburgh in Detroit's Olympia stadium last night.

A crowd of ten thousand fans saw a nip and tuck battle throughout the ten rounds, although La Motta's youth and weight advantage began to tell on 33-year-old Zivich by the seventh round. Two rounds went to Zivich on low blows thrown by La Motta.

Jake weighed 159 to Zivich's 151 1/2. They had met three times previously; twice in Pittsburgh and once in New York with La Motta winning twice.

ARMS' TRONG BY KAYO

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 15.—Hammerin' Hank Armstrong put himself in line for a crack at Sammy Angott's N. B. A. lightweight championship by knocking out Aldo Spoldi, Italian slugger, in the third round of a ten-round bout in Portland last night. Armstrong duked 138 pounds, lowered a dusky cloud of flailing fists over 141-pound Spoldi. The storm never lifted until the Italian batter lay sprawled through the ropes one minute and 39 seconds after the third round opened.

HOPE LEAD CUT

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Welker Cochran reduced Champion Willie Hoppe's lead in their three-cushion billiard exhibition match to 40 points today after winning two of yesterday's three blocks. At the end of yesterday's play, the match, which began in Kansas City and will end in New York, stood at 1,082 points for Hoppe and 1,042 for Cochran.

GREATEST WOMAN MARKSMAN?

MEET THE GREATEST WOMAN MARKSMAN, Mrs. Ad Topperwein, 60, of San Antonio, Tex., now teaching dead-eye rifle shooting to soldiers in over 100 Army camps. Mrs. Topperwein, affectionately called "Auntie Plinky" by the servicemen because she plinks off little 2 1/4-inch wooden blocks with her rifle as they're tossed into the air, is equally adept at shotgun and pistol shooting. She holds the world's record for those blocks—1,460 without a miss. (International)

Bucks Swamp Hoosier Team, 72-46, With Don Grate Piling Up 21

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
The Boilermakers from Purdue and the Wildcats from Northwestern shared the lead in the Big Ten basketball race today by virtue of their third victories against no defeats in the race for the Western Conference championship.

Purdue swept over Minnesota at Lafayette, Ind., last night to a 51 to 38 win, while the Wildcats overwhelmed the Maroons from Chicago university 77 to 20.

In the two other Big Ten games last night, Ohio State beat Indiana 72 to 46 in Columbus, and Wisconsin drove to victory over Michigan, winning 50 to 41, in a game which drew 8,000 fans to Wisconsin's fieldhouse.

Purdue's fast breaking attack gave them a continuous lead in a close contest. Panned by Bill Lodge, Purdue center, the Boilermakers then rang up several extra baskets in the final minutes to give them the 13 point victory. It was Minnesota's third conference loss and left her at the bottom of the standings.

Chicago's defeat was its 42nd consecutive conference loss. The Wildcats, led by Capt. Otto Graham, and Nick Vodic, forwards, so dominated the court that for 14 minutes of the first half the Maroons went scoreless. Northwestern led at the half 43 to 5. All 18 members of the Purple squad saw action.

Ohio State opened its big ten season by revealing a powerful offense, running up a 40 to 16 half time lead and then coasting the rest of the way.

Captain Don Grate led the Buckeye attack with 10 field goals and a free throw for 21 points. Arnold Risen, the 6 foot 8 inch center, who did not play the entire game, counted eight baskets and a free throw.

Paul Shields with nine points. Michigan and Wisconsin quintets played a fast game throughout although the Badgers had the edge most of the time. They counted a 25 to 20 lead at the half, mainly because of the accurate shooting of Ray Patterson, their center, who made nine baskets and a free throw in all.

The victory gave Wisconsin a 500 standing with two wins and two losses. Michigan has won one game and lost two.

LARKIN, RUFFIN DRAW

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—A brilliant rally in the last half of the contest earned Tippy Larkin, of Fairfield, N. J., a draw today with Bobby Ruffin, New York lightweight, in their 10-round battle at Madison Square Garden last night.

The customers didn't quite agree with the decision, however letting loose with a barrage of catcalls and boos. They figured that Larkin's uphill fight in the late rounds won him the nod over Ruffin, a 7-6 underdog in pre-fight odds.

De PAUL DECLINES BID

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—De Paul university athletic officials today declined an invitation to participate in a college-professional basketball game in Washington, D. C., February 8. The game was to be part of the celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday and was to bring together the nation's outstanding college basketball team and the world champion pro five, the Washington Bears. De Paul officials said schedule difficulties would not permit the Blue Demons to make the trip.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

have been lost since the war started.

"INNER SANCTUM"

To celebrate the third gory anniversary of "Inner Sanctum Mystery," Raymond, your host, will inaugurate a "Be Kind To Panthers Week." The squeaking door of the Inner Sanctum will open on Saturday at 7:30 p. m. to unleash the most ferocious beast ever trapped in a studio.

Raymond will prove that the care and feeding of panthers is a simple thing: just give it a victim once a week. And humans aren't rationed, remember?

Two people lost on a deserted country road, maniacal screams in the night, and the most evil of all jungle beasts free to roam the countryside and prey on all in his path—these are the elements of murder and mayhem that will combine to make "The Huntress" one of the most gruesome, gory, and gripping of all Inner Sanctum Mysteries.

ADELE ROBERTS

Adele Roberts will be the girl who makes her network debut as guest singer on the Bob Crosby-Les Tremayne show Sunday evening at 9:30.

Miss Roberts, who was born in Glasgow, Montana, gave up a scholarship at her state university to carve a career for herself in the musical world. In order to earn enough money to study singing in Hollywood, Adele spent her spare time modelling for such magazines as Vogue and Harper's Bazaar. Although she plays the piano and cello, in addition to her vocal talent, Adele has never performed before an audience. Her brother, Uan Rasey, plays the trumpet and is a member in good standing of Bob Crosby's Bobcats.

With a talented model on hand Les Tremayne is sure to bring out some of his best poetic phrases. Bob Crosby will do his best to impress the beautiful guest with his ability on some of the latest melodies.

Adele, Les and Bob will join up on the weekly "Lantern Slide" version of a popular song of yesterday. The Pied Pipers and Bob Crosby's Bobcats will be in charge of the musical background.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Latest radioite to arrive on Broadway is Joseph Downing, who went from the "Mr. District Attorney" cast to Zasu Pitts' "Ranch House Inn." Downing came to the "D. A." series from Hollywood, where he played film menaces.

Claudia Morgan is convalescing in a New York hospital after being felled by the flu so Helen Claire is substituting for her in the role of Andrea on "We Love and Learn" over CBS Mondays through Fridays. Helen first came to attention via "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" on Broadway.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, January 15

WITH strict and reasonable attention to the demands of the day, this may prove to be one of definite and enduring progress, with future security and worth well established. But a general tendency to balk at the necessity for putting the affairs on sound and enduring basis, may not only cause friction with elders and superiors but also undermine the standing, credit and good name and beget unhappy reactions on the health and domestic welfare. With due regard for strictly playing the game of life according to codes, there may be some specific gain and personal gratifications. Shun extravagance or frittering away the energies and substance.

Those whose birthday it is may have a perplexing and frustrated year. If they disregard personal as well as business obligations, as this is likely to produce friction and inharmonious in both private and business life. Defying or overlooking serious demands of duty may have reactions detrimental to credit, reputation, social and domestic wellbeing. The tendency to reckless expenditures in energy, funds and over-indulgences in many forms may undermine some very promising prospects. Flaunting such responsibilities and opportunities is bound to have its unhappy penalties.

A child born on this day may have made fair abilities and opportunities, but may be disposed to flaunt the serious demands of living, seeking the happy-go-lucky mode of life, unless checked in early years.

For Sunday, January 16

SUNDAY's horoscope points up the probability of much festivity, gaiety and celebration rather than any attempt at a serious or material contemplation of certain splendid opportunities for advancement, progress and fulfilled ambitions that are due to loom on the horizon. Those disposed to step up the more worthy and enduring aims and aspirations are bound to reap rich rewards and not forfeit the romance, happiness and restrained conviviality of benign occasions.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of promotion, honors, preferment and happy culminations of many ambitious hopes and desires. Although there may be parties, celebrations and festive occasions, making the year a memorable one, it is a time for reaching to high goals, not forgetting the gratitude and generosity due to unusual benefactors of luck and good fortunes. Certain emotional restraints are recommended. Shun impetuous moves.

A child born on this day will be blessed with many talents, abilities and personal graces and attractions to insure a prolific, worthy and happy life.

Pickaway County's Political Pot Showing Signs Of Action

ONLY TRIO OF OFFICES NOT TO BE CONTESTED

Numerous Citizens Seen As Likely Candidates At Primaries

LOUIS WILL RUN AGAIN

Present Officials Likely To Ask Indorsement Of Voters

The 1944 political pot has started to bubble in Pickaway county in the last few days with much activity to be observed between now and March 9, final day for filing nominating petitions.

Elections board has reported no general movement by candidates toward obtaining petitions, but numerous Pickaway countians have been mentioned during the last week as possible candidates for office.

In the entire courthouse set-up there are only three elective positions which will not be subject to the primary and the general November election.

Only position not subject to the election this year will be common pleas court judge, held by Meeker Terwilliger for two more years since his election in 1940 for a six year term; county auditor, the post being held by Forrest Short, and one commissioner post, filled by Lyman Penn, who was elected in 1940 for four years. Mr. Short is serving a term of the same length.

Primary May 9

The primary will be conducted May 9, all petitions to be filed with the election board at least 60 days prior to this date.

So far, no present holder of a county office has made a definite announcement concerning his candidacy, although several have been testing the political trend in the county in the last few days.

Herbert E. Louis of New Holland, Republican serving his first two year term as county representative in the general assembly, has stated definitely that he will run again. Mr. Louis put himself on record at the Township Trustees' association meeting last week in Memorial Hall when he promised his "continued support and cooperation if I am returned to the assembly."

Positions subject to the ballot box in May and again in November include:

Probate judge, served by Lemuel B. Weldon, who is finishing his first full term after being named to fill an unexpired term of the late Charles C. Young. Mr. Weldon is a Republican.

County commissioner, terms of John B. Keller and Wayne Hoover expiring. Mr. Keller, president of the board, is completing his second term, while Mr. Hoover is finishing his first. Both are Democrats.

Engineer, now filled by Henry T. McCrady, a Democrat, who is in his first four year term.

Clerk, served by A. L. Wilder, a Democrat, who filled an unexpired term of Ferd M. Pickens, two 2-year terms and is now finishing his first four year term.

Treasurer, post held by Robert G. Colville, Democrat, now completing his third term, two of which were of two years each and one of four years.

Recorder, filled by Mrs. Florence T. Campbell, who is in her second term, one being of two years and one of four. Mrs. Campbell is a Democrat.

Sheriff, position being filled by Charles Radcliff, a Democrat, who is now in his fifth term, four of his terms being of two years each and the present of four years.

Prosecutor, held by George E. Gerhardt, Democrat, who is completing his second term.

Draft may have something to do with the 1944 election, with status of Engineer McCrady and Prosecutor Gerhardt to be determined prior to time for the primary. Both men are now in 1-A.

Pickaway county will be called on to elect a coroner, also, to succeed Captain Edwin L. Montgomery, who has been serving with the 37th Division in the Pacific. Montgomery has never served as coroner, going into service before he could take office.

Justice of Peace B. T. Hedges has been acting as coroner.

RUSSIANS AND UNRRA

Courteous Soviet Ambassador Gromyko dropped in to see Relief Administrator Herbert Lehman, ex-Governor of New York, the other day and said to him:

"I want you to meet your new deputy general, Mikhail Alekseevich Menshikov."

Governor Lehman murmured that he was delighted, chatted pleasantly for several minutes. Then the two Russians left.

Afterward, Governor Lehman, who is slightly hard of hearing, got to wondering about the "new deputy general." He wasn't quite sure that he had heard Ambassador Gromyko correctly. Particularly, he wasn't sure of what organization Menshikov was to be deputy general. Was it, by any chance, UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration) for which Lehman is supposed to appoint the deputies.

So Governor Lehman called in his assistant, Phil Hammer, and asked him to find out. Lehman had already appointed Roy Hendrickson of the Food Distribution Administration as one of his deputies, and Sir Arthur Salter, British economist and shipping expert, as another. He did not know that he was to have a Russian deputy also.

Hammer invited Menshikov to lunch. During the lunch, he didn't want to ask point blank of what organization his guest was deputy general, but he did his best to work round to the point diplomatically. Finally, he found out. Menshikov had been appointed by the Russian Government to serve under Lehman as deputy general of UNRRA.

The Russians either had been very naive in sending Menshikov over without any advance announcement, or else this was their way of gently notifying Governor Lehman that his organization was going to be one of the most important in the world and that they wanted Russia represented in a high-up post.

Whichever is correct, there is no question about the tremendous political power of the Relief Administration. By withholding food and clothing from Greeks who oppose the Greek king, for instance, Lehman could exert influence as to who would be the ruler of Greece. By sending food and clothing to Tito's followers in Yugoslavia, or by favoring Mikhailovitch's men, UNRRA could change the whole political picture in Yugoslavia.

No wonder the Russians carefully picked their man to sit at Governor Lehman's right hand and promptly sent him to Washington.

ARMY AIR BASE MARKS FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Saturday marked the first anniversary of the founding of the B-17 central instruction school of the Army air forces training command at Lockbourne army air base.

The school, largest of its kind in the command, was organized by Lt. Col. Audrin R. Walker of Los Angeles, Cal., who went to Lockbourne with a small staff and a number of planes from Hendricks field, Fla., the original B-17 training center.

Colonel Walker, who still directs the training program at Lockbourne, was lauded Saturday by Colonel John S. Gullet, base commander, for his work in the last year when hundreds of pilots for the masterful bombers were turned out. Most of these men are now flying B-17s in the various combat zones.

Colonel Walker has been in the air corps almost seven years.

The colonel received his orders to form the school at Lockbourne at noon January 15, 1943, and immediately flew his staff and equipment from Hendricks field to Lockbourne. He and his outfit arrived in 12 hours with all equipment, a feat which brought him commendation from his superiors.

NEW TOKEN SYSTEM TO SAVE RETAILERS MONEY

The new token system of point rationing which becomes effective February 27 will save $35,000,000 a year in bookkeeping and clerical expenses for retail stores throughout the nation.

This estimate was disclosed Saturday by Walter Straub, national director of food rationing. Straub said the system will make shopping easier for the housewife as well, since she will not have to take her whole ration book to the store if she makes a small purchase.

Expansion of School Gymnasium Facilities Shows Good Progress

Expansion of Circleville high school's gymnasium facilities so that each boy in the upper five grades will be provided instruction and exercise under members of the physical education department is being speeded.

J. Wray Henry, high school principal, said Saturday that some of the equipment has been put in place and is ready for service, while other items which have been ordered have not yet arrived. A striking bag platform has been built, but the bag itself has not yet been received.

The program is being carried on with the sponsorship of the board of education, which has been buying equipment asked by the athletic department.

Included in the gymnasium equipment ordered by the board are scales, striking bag and platform, volley ball posts and nets, mats, tumbling belt, goal-his, and numerous books for the library on physical education.

CRITICAL STAGE OF GAS EMERGENCY IS PAST

Serious Shortage to Continue Indefinitely

Milder weather has made possible easing some of the restrictions under which we have asked you to use gas during the emergency of the last few days. The situation continues to be so serious from the standpoint of the gas supply that it is hoped this message will not be taken as a signal to use gas on an unrestricted basis. For months we have advised our customers of the growing shortage.

This gas shortage continues and will become progressively more serious as the winter advances. The production of gas from the wells declines in proportion to the gas taken from them. In normal times we find opportunities to rest our wells—shutting some of them off to allow more gas to accumulate at the well. This practice permits taking greater than normal amounts of gas from the wells during short periods when peak demands are made upon us. In recent weeks there have been but few opportunities to shut off reserve wells to increase the volume that could be secured when demands were greater.

The War Production Board is making an effort to locate additional gas for us from other areas but such relief cannot be counted upon unless and until this gas is secured.

As winter advances emergency conditions may occur during increasingly mild weather. It is possible that it will be necessary to declare an emergency condition when average daily temperatures are only 20 degrees this month—perhaps as warm as 25 degrees next month. It is doubtful that we will be able to furnish normal supplies of gas at 35 degrees in March.

The problems of maintaining adequate pressures in distribution lines and preventing gas outages to our customers will be a serious threat in all emergencies. Every cubic foot of gas that you can save for the remainder of the winter will help lessen the frequency and severity of these occasions. To date this winter relatively few industries engaged in war work have been affected by the gas shortage. As more severe weather is experienced emergencies will arise which certainly will force curtailment of additional industries—many of them engaged in critical war work. Your continued efforts to save gas each day will hold these interruptions to a minimum.

The War Production Board and the War Department join us in expressing sincere appreciation for the fine cooperation you are giving in this critical situation.

Having seen the fine cooperation which you gave in the recent emergency, it is hoped that more and more customers can be counted upon to start at once restricting their day-to-day uses of gas in the following manner:

HEATING

Conscientiously make 65 degrees your accepted wartime living temperature.

Close off every part of your home or place of business that you can do without.

Depend entirely upon coal or oil if either of these is the regular method of heating your premises.

Those who use gas ovens, radiant fires or other gas heaters to supplement heating plants using coal or oil are perhaps the greatest threat to gas service under present conditions. When tempted to use gas heat for such purposes, ask yourself if the room cannot be shut off instead. You are counted upon not to use gas for supplemental heating.

WATER HEATING

Be very conservative in your use of hot water. Do not use it wastefully just because it is available.

Those with manually controlled heaters should turn up the flame only when hot water is needed for laundry or bathing, then reduce the flame or turn it out as quickly as possible.

Avoid washing hands or dishes in running hot water.

COOKING

Combine as much of your cooking as possible so that more food can be cooked with the same amount of gas.

Use oven instead of several top burners when preparing more than one hot dish.

Do not turn the gas higher than is needed to maintain cooking temperatures.

Turn out gas immediately when cooking is finished.

Your self-restricted uses of gas as outlined above will show continued support of the war effort as well as a determined interest in helping maintain your gas service. We still advise that you make arrangements with a neighbor for gaining entrance to your home in case a gas outage occurs when you are away. Also, you are asked to be alert continually for the next gas emergency which may come at any time.

RUSS SITUATION EASES

America May Seek To Bring
Disputing Countries Back
To Friendship

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 — The United States government probably will agree to use its good offices to try to effect a reconciliation between Russia and the Polish refugee government in London.

This was the immediate reaction in responsible circles to the Polish government's formal appeal to the United States and Great Britain to act as mediators in Poland's boundary dispute with Russia.

The Polish appeal is being referred to President Roosevelt for his personal consideration before the American government's reply is sent to London. The State department also intends to give the Polish communication careful study. Therefore, the American reply may not go forth until sometime next week.

On the whole, the Polish government's statement was regarded in Washington as conciliatory. The language was reviewed as restrained and designed to facilitate a resumption of relations with the Soviet government.

Temperate Claims

The statement that the Polish government could not recognize "unilateral decisions or accomplished facts which have taken place on the territory of the Polish republic" was considered a temperate reference to Moscow's recent announcement that Russia is determined to retain those parts of pre-war east Poland known as the Western Ukraine and White Russia.

In this connection, it was pointed out that the American government has long been opposed to unilateral or arbitrary settlements of international disputes, especially when such settlements are based on the use of force.

Encouraging Sign

The implication in the Polish statement that Poland is prepared to consider a rectification of its eastern frontier with Russia was viewed as an encouraging sign. It revived hope in official Washington. (Continued on Page Two)

GAS EMERGENCY
PASSES IN AREA

Milder Weather Eases Crisis,
But Situation Remains
Serious, McClain Says

Milder weather in the last two days has eased the gas situation in Ohio, and Ohio Fuel Gas Co. officials Saturday announced that the critical stage of the gas emergency has passed.

"However," Dan McClain, manager of the Circleville district office, warned, "the situation continues to be so serious from the standpoint of the gas supply that it is hoped this announcement will not be taken as a signal to use gas on an unrestricted basis." For months gas consumers have been warned of the growing fuel shortage.

Temperatures in Circleville became more moderate Friday afternoon, the mercury going up to 42 degrees. The lowest marked reached during the night and early morning was 20.

Warning Sounded

Mr. McClain warned that the gas shortage continues and will become progressively more serious as the winter advances. The production of gas from the wells declines in proportion to the gas taken from them. In normal times opportunities are found to rest the wells, shutting some of them off to allow more gas to accumulate at the well. This practice permits taking greater than normal amounts of gas from the wells during short periods of peak demand. In recent weeks there have been but few opportunities to shut off reserve wells.

The War Production Board is making an effort to locate additional gas for this district, but such relief cannot be counted on. (Continued on Page Two)

HE LOSES BOTH
GIRL FRIEND AND
$5,200 DIAMOND

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—Mark Starr learned to his sorrow today that a lady may keep her ring even if she does break the engagement and marry someone else. Starr, 55-year-old retired manufacturer, sought to have a $5,200 ring returned to him which he gave to Actress Kathleen Howard Meyer on the understanding that they would be married. Mrs. Meyer later married a song-writer. In supreme court, Justice Louis A. Valente said he sympathized with Starr, but allowed Mrs. Meyer to keep the ring because a New York court of appeals already had decided the case in an earlier decision.

Seventh Air Force Flies

Fifty Missions

HICKAM FIELD, Oahu, Jan. 15—Jap airpower in the Marshall Islands has been considerably curtailed by a two-month campaign by the Seventh Air Force and navy carriers in which Mille airfield has been eighty percent "neutralized," according to Major General William Hale, Seventh Air Force commander.

Army Liberator and Mitchell bombers flying on average missions 2,431 miles from their home base in addition reduced a seaplane supply base 80 percent, cut the efficiency of another base in half and inflicted lesser damage on two other airfields.

Conquest of the Gilbert Islands has brought the Seventh Air Force within striking distance of five Marshall bases, but air force fliers are still making the longest combat flights in the world.

General Hale, just returned from a forward area where he personally directed the continuing campaign, said the Japs are concentrating fighter planes on the most essential Marshall bases leaving others without fighter protection. The anti-aircraft fire is heavier and more accurate however and the Japs are maintaining a strong airforce on "unneutralized" islands.

Marshalls Stronger
"The Marshalls have been reinforced," the general declared. "At first the anti-aircraft fire was meager, inaccurate and the fighter opposition light. After we took Tarawa, things got tough. One day Army planes attacked two islands within a minute of each other. Thirty planes came up from each island and the ack-ack was heavier and better."

Stating that Maloelap and Wotje islands offered the most serious opposition in planes and ack-ack, the general continued: "The Jap pilots are definitely better in our area and apparently their planes are armored more. (Continued on Page Two)

RICK PRAISES RUSSIANS FOR ALL-OUT EFFORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 — Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker praised the Soviet Union today as the "only all-out people anywhere in the world in this war" but made it clear he did not mean this as an endorsement of Communism.

Rickenbacker, in an address to 1,300 members of National Engineering societies meeting in New York, told a story which he said a Soviet official in Washington related to him. The unnamed Russian described U. S. Communists by saying:

"Every dog has fleas, and you have most of ours in America."

"The Russians are nearer to the Americans than any other people I have contacted," said Rickenbacker, "and I like the British."

"I came away from Russia liking the Russian people. They are the only all-out people anywhere in the world in this war. They have no absenteeism; I had a hard time making them understand what I meant by the term. There is no such thing as essential industry or non-deferrable occupation."

"In Russia, you're either in the war or you're not."

Turning to the Pacific, the World War One ace said "we won't live long enough to see the end of the war if we do it island by island." Rickenbacker said he was not in favor of Siberian bases being granted by Russia because "Japan would take them as soon as we got them."

SOLDIER VOTE
BATTLE LOOMS

Administration Mustering
Forces To Oppose
State Control

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—The first major house battle of the year appeared in the making today over the soldier vote issue.

Next week, the house will take up a senate-passed bill calling on the states to provide servicemen with absentee ballots, but administration leaders are already mustering their forces to defeat the measure.

In line with President Roosevelt's recommendations, Democratic leaders will attempt to substitute for the senate bill a measure by Rep. Worley (D) Tex., providing for a uniform federal ballot.

The senate bill has the support of most Republicans and a majority of Southern Democrats, a combination in the closely-divided house which ordinarily is powerful enough to pass any bill it wants.

They demonstrated their strength yesterday in the house committee on presidential elections, of which Worley is chairman, when they favorably reported the senate version in amended form. The Southern Democrats and four Republicans provided a two-vote margin over five Democrats headed by Worley.

"I think we have an excellent chance of upsetting the bill on the house floor," Worley said today. "If the committee bill is passed it means that most of the eleven million members of the armed forces won't get to vote in the next election."

Re. Manasco (D) Ala., a committee member who supported the senate version, replied that "it is ridiculous for anyone to say that because the states are going to handle the distribution of the (Continued on Page Two)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15—A toy yo-yo has become the sensation of the Munda area in the Solomons, and because of it Marine Private Bill Graff Jr., has become a demigod to the bushy-haired natives.

Graff's father included a yo-yo in a Christmas package last month. Today, he received a letter from the young leatherneck, which read:

"The natives down here are going nuts trying to figure out how this darned yo-yo works. They follow me around all the time, begging to try it. The natives think I'm on the supernatural side. And I'm not telling 'em any different."

LEIS TO ASSIST
PROSECUTION OF
JAMES COLLETT

(Special To The Herald)

WASHINGTON, C. H., Jan. 15 —The state bolstered its efforts to send James Collett, 60-year-old Clinton county farmer, to the electric chair for the murder of the Elmer McCoy family last Thanksgiving eve when Simon L. Leis, veteran Cincinnati criminal prosecutor, was named to assist Prosecutor John B. Hill in handling the case.

Collett goes on trial February 14. He is charged with murders of McCoy, his brother-in-law, McCoy's wife and their daughter, Mildred. He has pleaded innocent in his preliminary hearing and arraignment, and it has been indicated by his counsel that he may plead innocent in the trial by reason of insanity.

Common Pleas Judge H. M. Rankin overruled a defense motion Friday demanding the state set forth in a bill of particulars the facts on which it based an indictment against McCoy. The defense claimed that the indictment was vague and not specific as to the time when the McCoy's were slain.

Attorney Leis has been engaged in a graft and vice inquiry in Youngstown in recent months for Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert.

BOOKIE ZOOKIE
SLAIN; PARTNER
COLLAPSES, DIES

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—The reign of "Zookie the Bookie" was ended today.

And so was the career of his partner in alleged illegal activities on Chicago's West Side.

"Zookie the Bookie," known more formally to police authorities as Benjamin Zuckerman, 49, was shot down in typical gangland fashion last night by a lone gunman who accosted him as "Zookie" was about to enter his home.

Less than an hour later his partner, Ben Glaser, 62, collapsed and died of a heart attack in his home when he learned of Zuckerman's death.

The gunman caught up with Zuckerman as he started up the walk to his home. He fired one bullet into his victim's chest from arms length, then fired three times more as Zuckerman lay on the sidewalk pleading, "don't shoot, don't shoot."

The other bullets entered his face, neck, and chest.

The killer escaped in an auto in which two other men waited.

Police sought an explanation to the killing in the gambling and bootlegging activities in the 24th ward in which Zuckerman was the acknowledged gambling czar. They were also looking into his political activities.

LABOR DRAFT DEFEAT SEEN

Reynolds Declares Need
For Legislation Does Not Exist

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—Sen. Robert R. Reynolds (D) N. C., chairman of the senate military affairs committee, predicted today complete defeat of national service legislation asked by President Roosevelt.

"Such an act can have only two acceptable objectives—to stop strikes and to create more manpower," Reynolds said.

"Sen. Austin (R) of Vt., author of an act like this now before the committee, has frankly stated it is not intended as a strike remedy and our manpower problems are due to lack of proper direction—not to a shortage of workers."

"On these grounds, congress will defeat such a bill."

Reynolds' prediction came as Sen. Tom Connally (D) Texas, co-author of the Smith-Connally anti-strike bill passed last year, began a canvass of the upper house to find out whether there is sentiment for putting more teeth into the measure.

If so, Connally indicated he might introduce a new bill in the form of an amendment as Rep. Howard Smith (D) Va., has already done in the house.

Meanwhile, selective service was taking steps to determine whether some additional manpower may not be obtained from 17 year old youths, conscientious objectors, men in the 38 to 45 year old draft exempt pool, men in prisons and men already in service, but classed as "limited services."

Selective service submitted a report to congress accompanied by a statement that strength of the armed forces would be increased. (Continued on Page Two)

KID SHORN OF HIS "MANHOOD"
BY COURT ORDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—Seventeen-year-old Phillip Vicari was shorn of his assured manhood today—on court order.

Vicari was charged in city court with annoying a druggist with his whistling, and creating a disturbance when a policeman ejected him.

Surveying Vicari's long sideburns, studiously waved hair and neatly trimmed mustache, Magistrate Joseph Dandrea said:

"Your whole trouble is that you think you are a man. You are a boy. Go across the street and get that mustache off."

When Vicari returned the magistrate dismissed the charge.

Rail Wage
Dispute In Final Stage

Surprise Settlement By Operating Unions Clears
Way For Peace

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 — The surprise settlement of the operating railway dispute today left only the tangled pay controversy of the 15 non-operating brotherhoods standing in the way of complete railroad labor peace and release of the nation's carriers from army control.

Five of the 20 big rail unions—the railroad trainmen, locomotive engineers, conductors, firemen and switchmen — have now signed agreements providing for a pay boost of nine cents an hour, terminating their portion of the dispute which threatened a strike last month.

Disposition of the case of the non-operating organizations representing one million, 100 thousand employees remained in the hands of President Roosevelt's special three-man wage board which resumed hearings today seeking to decide the union's overtime pay claims.

Counter Proposal

The carriers were expected to submit a counter proposal aimed at an ultimate pay adjustment of about nine cents for the 15 non-operating unions. The administration reportedly favors the same wage settlement for all the rail brotherhoods.

Latest proposal from the non-operating groups, however, was the submission of a new formula calling for a sliding scale raise of 11 to 13 cents an hour, including an increase in basic wage rates plus overtime compensation beyond 40 hours weekly.

These developments also highlighted the past 24 hours in the year-old wage controversy:

1. The three "holdout" operating unions — conductors, firemen and switchmen — signed agreements providing for the nine cent pay increase awarded earlier by the President to their associates in the "Big Five." It was reported, however, that the agreements reached by the "holdout" trio and the carriers were not "identical" with those of the trainmen, and engineers, as desired by Mr. Roosevelt.

2. A house subcommittee approved an amendment to the senate-passed railroad pay bill which would prohibit Economic Czar Fred Vinson from passing on railroad wage increases. It was un- (Continued on Page Two)

Berlin And Magdeburg Hit

By International News Service
Hundreds of RAF bombers, ranging from giant four-motored craft to lighter Mosquitos, blasted Nazi Germany in a three-pronged assault during the night to add new striking power to the mighty Allied aerial offensive which saw an estimated 3,000 planes take to the skies in the last 24 hours.

The industrial and plane manufacturing city of Brunswick was pounded with 2,240 tons of bombs while the Mosquitos hammered at Magdeburg and Berlin. It was the second attack in three days for Brunswick and Magdeburg, which American precision bombers raided heavily last Tuesday in an assault that German and neutral sources indicated may also have included blows at Berlin.

Indicating that daylight armadas again may be out over the continent to follow up the night attacks, the Danish radio went off the air at 12:40 p. m. in the middle of a news program.

Well-informed observers declared that some 3,000 aircraft of all types, including many heavy bombers, were in the air during the last 24 hours in operations which included tremendous attacks against the French invasion coast and other occupied areas, as well as sweeps against shipping off the Norwegian coast.

Lash At Brunswick

The RAF armadas lashed at Brunswick, 120 miles southwest of Berlin, in "a very heavy attack" which covered the city with rolling clouds of smoke and flame and caused heavy damage among important war-production plants, presumably including vital Messerschmitt-110 factories. Once again Nazi defenses were thrown off balance by Mosquito stabs at Berlin and at Magdeburg, 80 miles to the southwest, where important iron works and a Krupp works are located.

The diversionary attacks appeared to have been worked out as part of an integrated British-American scheme of attack which saw the unprecedented operations of the last 24 hours woven into one masterly strategic plan. Overwhelming weights of bombs were dropped at a cost of exceptionally few planes lost, and enemy defense posts were forced to remain on the alert throughout the day and night without respite.

More Mines Laid

Small-scale attacks and mine-laying operations were also carried out, further spreading the thin Nazi defenses and enabling the RAF virtually to complete the destruction of Brunswick which the Fortresses and Liberators began in daylight Tuesday. The loss of 38 planes in the night's assaults was viewed as a very small percentage of the total involved.

Stockholm sources estimated that at least 500 planes were over Germany during the night, with 100 or more sweeping over Berlin. (Continued on Page Two)

JURIST LEARNS
ALL LANES TURN
AT SOME TIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—Years ago, when John J. Fitzgerald was on the bench, a penniless Negro needed a lawyer. So the jurist assigned one of the country's most noted criminal lawyers, Samuel S. Leibowitz, as his counsel.

Leibowitz protested because he was busy with another case, but it did no good. Yesterday, another penniless Negro stood in the same court, only this time it was Leibowitz who was on the bench as the presiding judge.

Yep, you guessed it—Judge Leibowitz told the Negro: "I'll assign the Hon. John J. Fitzgerald as your counsel, and I'll see that he defends you personally—or else."

2,240 TONS OF BOMBS RAINED ON BRUNSWICK

Berlin And Magdeburg Hit By Diversionsary Attacks During Night

These sources said the assault on Magdeburg was the "heaviest yet."

American Air Force headquarters in Britain meanwhile revealed that 27 Nazi planes were shot down by American heavy and medium bombers and fighters during yesterday's record-breaking air offensive against the French invasion coast. Thirteen U. S. planes were lost, including three heavy bombers, three fighter-bombers and seven fighters.

Nine Nazi planes were smashed by the Fortresses and Liberators; 14 by U. S. Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs and four others by Marauders and their escorting fighters.

Yanks Do Well

The communiqué said the Forts and Liberators "attacked all assigned targets in clear weather and good results were reported against weak enemy opposition."

The German DNB agency said American planes joined the RAF in pounding Germany last night, but London sources gave no indication that Yank planes operated after dark.

The London Evening News, declaring that "the battle of Germany is on again," said "hundreds" of huge bombers attacked vital German industrial targets during the night. Brunswick, Berlin and Magdeburg were hit Tuesday in the record-breaking American daylight assault against Germany in which some 1,500 planes participated.

An indication of the size of the attacking air fleet was given by observers on England's east and southeast coasts who reported that great processions of heavy bombers roared toward Europe last evening in such numbers that the armadas took 45 minutes to pass.

Blast at Balkans

In the Balkans, other Allied bombers were active. In support of Yugoslav partisan forces battling the German occupation army, fighter escorted raiders dropped a "large number" of high explosive and fragmentation bombs on hangars and runways at the Nazi-held airbase of Mostar in central Herzegovina province.

Mostar is a rail and river town situated some 48 miles southwest of Sarajevo.

On the Italian land front, meantime, French units of the Fifth Army stormed and seized the enemy's mountain stronghold of Acquafredda, seven and one-half miles northeast of the Cassino gateway to Rome.

The French polius and knife-wielding Moroccan Goumiers continued their advance and took three heights dominating the area northeast of the key German base, and smashed to within five miles of the Atina-Cassino road. This route is one of the last two remaining supply roads for Cassino's beleaguered garrison.

These new French victories resulted in the virtual surrounding of the enemy's fortified village of Vituliano, which lies about seven miles northeast of Cassino.

Two Russian armies threatened to trap German forces in the vastness of the frozen Pripiet marshes. One Soviet spearhead drove as far as 20 miles west of the fallen Nazi bastions of Kalinkovichi and Mozyr in White Russia, and another Red Army force to the southeast was within 35 miles north of the big communications hub of Rovno, deep in old Poland.

Stiff German resistance and numerous counterattacks around Vinnitsa in the Dnieper bend failed to stop the Russian drive toward the key Odessa-Lwow railroad.

In the southwest Pacific, Australian artillery bombarded the Japs' supply base of Sio, where Aussies and Yanks were closing a trap on the enemy.

certain whether this action would affect efforts of the wage board to bring about an early settlement of the non-operating case.

Settlement of the case of the three "holdout" operating unions was announced by the White House in a letter from President Roosevelt to J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads.

"I think it important for the future relations of the carriers and employees that any settlement with the firemen, conductors and switchmen should be identical with the two other brotherhoods," Mr. Roosevelt said.

It was understood, however, that all vestiges of a "freeze" on wages were removed in the agreement signed by the three operating unions. The nine cent figure includes a four cents hourly increase in wage rates plus 5 cents in lieu of overtime and lay-over expenses away from home. In case of the trainmen and engineers, who accepted the President's arbitration Christmas Eve, the five cent overtime award was frozen for the duration of the war. The conductors, switchmen and firemen opposed any such freeze.

GAS EMERGENCY PASSES IN AREA

unless and until the gas is secured.

The Gas Company warned that as winter advances emergency conditions may occur during increasingly mild weather. It is possible that it will be necessary to declare an emergency condition when average daily temperatures are only 20 degrees this month, perhaps as warm as 25 degrees next month.

Face Big Problem

The problem of maintaining adequate pressures in distribution lines and preventing gas outages to customers will be a serious threat in all emergencies. Every cubic foot of gas that customers can save for the remainder of the winter will help lessen the frequency and severity of those outages.

To date this winter relatively few industries engaged in war work have been affected by the gas shortage. As more severe weather is experienced, emergencies will arrive which certainly will force curtailment of additional industries, many of them engaged in critical war work. The continued efforts of gas customers to save gas each day will hold these interruptions to a minimum.

Customers are asked to start restricting their day-to-day uses of gas in the following manner:

Heating

Conscientiously make 65 degrees your accepted wartime living temperature. Close off every part of your home or place of business that you can do without. Depend entirely on coal or oil if either of those is the regular method of heating your premises.

Those who use gas ovens, radiant fires or other gas heaters to supplement heating plants using coal or oil are perhaps the greatest threat to gas service under present conditions. When tempted to use gas heat for such purposes ask yourself if the room cannot be shut off instead. You are counted on not to use gas for supplemental heating.

Water Heating

Be very conservative in your use of hot water. Do not use it wastefully just because it is available.

Those with manually controlled heaters should turn up the flame only when hot water is needed for laundry or bathing, then reduce the flame or turn it out as quickly as possible.

Avoid washing hands or dishes in running hot water.

Cooking

Combine as much of your cooking as possible so that more food can be cooked with the same amount of gas. Use the oven for preparing several hot dishes instead of separate top burners.

Do not turn the gas higher than is needed to maintain cooking

General Hale pointed out that ground defenses are intact on islands held by the Japs for twenty years, and explained that "neutralization" meant the destruction of airfield facilities making the base useless for Jap planes. Even carefully prepared underground areas must be knocked out. The Marshall ground defenses are of the same type but greater than those in the Gilberts.

CHARLES WILLIAM GLICK DIES SUDDENLY AT HOME

Charles William Glick, 67, lifelong resident and widely known farmer of Walnut township, died suddenly Friday afternoon of a heart ailment, falling on the road in front of his home. Mr. Glick was related to the Crist family of Circleville.

Born in Walnut township December 1, 1876, he was the son of Joshua and Mary Crist Glick. In addition to the widow, Mrs. Mary Ellen Boyer Glick, he leaves one sister, Mrs. Dora Baum, of Ashville and one brother, Bert Glick, of Columbus.

Funeral services will be Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the St. Paul Lutheran church with the Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff officiating. Burial in Reber Hill cemetery will be in charge of the Schlegel funeral home, Ashville.

temperatures. Turn out gas immediately when cooking is finished.

The War Production Board and the War Department join the Gas company in expressing appreciation for the cooperation the public is giving. The self-restricted uses of gas as outlined will show continued support to the war effort as well as a determined interest in helping maintain gas service. Customers still are advised to make arrangements with neighbors for gaining entrance to their homes in case gas outages occur when they are away. Also, they are asked to be alert continually for the next gas emergency which may come at any time.

Included in the army acceptance list are William Burget, David Yates, Russell Moats and Virgil Timmons of Circleville and Arthur Brewer of Columbus.

These men will leave Circleville February 3 for Fort Thomas, Ky. Draft board expects to receive the complete report on the contingent early next week. Men taken for the navy, marines and Seabees have not yet been reported, nor has the rejection list been received.

ballots that anyone won't vote."

"There have been more mis-statements made about this issue than any in a long time, the Alabamian asserted. "Not many people seem to know that if we had a federal ballot the soldiers would only get to vote for president, vice president senators and congressmen and the names of these candidates would not even be on the ballot. They would have to be written in."

"The truth of the matter is that soldiers might get to cast a ballot under the federal proposal, but thousands of them would never be counted because of conflict with state laws. If the states are allowed to handle the problem, there is no reason why every soldier, at home and abroad, cannot vote and have his vote counted if he is a qualified voter."

COLLEGE, OFFICE, FACTORY
SENDING girls to college has come to be taken, in this country, almost as a matter of course. Until the war broadened and deepened, thousands of girls would never have thought of not going to college. Now a different viewpoint seems to be developing.

Dr. Bancroft Beatley, president of Simmons College, in Boston, addressing a college club in the Middle West, makes the surprising statement that "in a large number of cases the experience is of little value, and even harmful."

A successful college career, he explains, requires "intelligence, social maturity, physical stamina and a real purpose." He insists that parents should not arbitrarily send their daughters to college, but should do so only when the girls' abilities and needs really justify it. Life now offers, he says, many kinds of educational opportunities that are just as valuable.

This view will comfort many a girl who has thought a college education essential. And there needn't be any "sour grapes" about it, either. Certainly thousands of girls today, in work of a hundred kinds, are developing and broadening their minds and acquiring fine skills, while giving useful service to the community.

THE war is helping at least one class, the aging ballplayers. The year 1944 will see more 40-year-olds in the big leagues than ever before. Johnny Cooney of Brooklyn is 43, and will be back. So will Paul Waner at 41, striving to add to his lifetime total of more than 3,000 hits. Al Simmons, also 41, is returning to the scene of his original triumphs, the Philadelphia Athletics. Bill Dickey of the New York Yankees will be playing his 22nd year in organized baseball, and Mel Ott of the New York Giants his 19th. Normally many of the above would find the pace too swift; with a manpower shortage they can hold their own.

Last year's teams, says Ford Frick, president of the National League, were made up of "pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, some 4-F's, some plus-38's, and some sub-19's. This year will see fewer fathers and more of the others."

If the war goes on, 81-year-old Connie Mack, who is managing the Athletics from the bench, may have to hunt up his old catcher's mask and get behind the bat.

The Soviet keeps rolling along, and this is the year when Hitler gets flattened out.

Fighting Men Say Tarawa Toll Not Too Heavy Cost
Somervell "Squeeze Play" During Railroad Crisis
Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—Fighting men back from the American invasion of the Gilbert Islands believe firmly that the United States did not pay too high a price in casualties for the capture of Tarawa. Even laymen would understand the heavy cost, they insist, if they could have seen the defenses the Japs had installed—especially on the main island of Betio.
Some Navy and Marine officers also feel that the stories about the fighting there stressed the high American casualties—more than 1,000 killed—without pointing out strongly enough that the entire enemy force of 6,000 men was wiped out. Betio was garrisoned by 4,000 Jap marines, who are trained especially for island warfare. Yet American Marines wiped out all resistance in about three days.
Some quarters insist that the final casualty count will be somewhat lower than first thought due to later check-ups on wounded and missing who were picked up by Naval craft. American casualties would have been much heavier except for the fact that Army and Navy airmen swept Japanese planes from the skies while United States warships protected transports from possible attack by surface vessels.
MOST OBSERVERS credit Lieut. Gen. Breton B. Somervell with a neat "squeeze play" during the last strike crisis. Somervell, commanding general of the Army Service Forces, was handed the job of running the railroads when the government seized them Dec. 27. When the three last-ditch hold-out operating unions talked with the general 18 hours before the strike deadline, they undoubtedly agreed that they would not strike against the government.
However, they wanted to retain the threat of a strike as a bargaining point to get a wage adjustment and proposed to withhold formal announcement that the strike was settled until the last possible moment. Somervell and Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson

By DREW PEARSON
BARBER-CHAIR PARLEY
WASHINGTON—Those on the inside say that most of the trouble regarding rail wages and even the seizure of the railroads might have been avoided if the President had not been in the barber's chair when last Summer, he discussed wages with George Harrison, head of the railroad clerks.
Genial "Pa" Watson, guardian of all White House appointments, unfortunately let the railroad labor leader in to see the President at the end of a busy day when he was getting a shave.
Tired and relaxed, Roosevelt was stretched out in the barber's chair with lather all over his face. He talked to Harrison between strokes of the razor, which meant that he didn't talk very much. Harrison did most of the talking and said that the railroad non-operating workers should have a wage increase of 8 cents an hour, plus 6 cents an hour for overtime.
He came away from the White House with the definite impression that the President agreed to this. As a result, all rail workers, both operating and non-operating, expected a proportionate raise and were boiling mad when Economic Stabilizer Vinson found that it violated the Little Steel formula and anti-inflation policies.
Ever since then, Harrison and associates have stuck to the promise which Harrison believed the President gave while he was being shaved.

HULL FOR PRESIDENT
White-thatched, conservative Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa had a private chat with Secretary of State Cordell Hull last week that would have made headlines had the circumstances leaked out.
The Iowa Democrat put it up to Hull very bluntly that he should be the Democratic nominee for the Presidency this year. Gillette is a member of the senate foreign relations committee, and went to the State department ostensibly to discuss international questions. However, the meeting quickly got down to some straight talk about politics.
After commending the 72-year-old cabinet officer for the "national acclaim" he had won by his recent mission to Moscow, Gillette added that Hull was one of the few men who commanded the "respect and affection" of all factions of the Democratic party. Then he got down to brass tacks.
"Mr. Secretary," he said, "I don't suppose it is any secret that there are many members of congress who would like to see you as the next Democratic nominee."
The Iowan added that he had been given to understand that President Roosevelt would not seek a fourth term, in which case Hull should feel free to accept the nomination.
Hull didn't say yes, and he didn't say no. He replied that he appreciated the compliment, but that he had no ambitions beyond that of finishing out his duties as secretary of state and helping to win the peace. He also said he was getting pretty old and indicated that he would prefer to make no commitments, at least until the President had spoken out on a fourth term.
Gillette later told intimates that the secretary had by no means closed the door against a nomination bid.

Effect of Hot Baths

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
A CORRESPONDENT wants to know whether the Turkish Bath is harmful to high blood pressure or low blood pressure.
My first reaction to this is where is he going to find a Turkish bath. I presume a few specimens of this almost extinct ornament to the regular life of the Gay Nineties still exist in the underground passages of decaying old hotels, but they rate for rarity with the Dodo.
I remember them. A double row of cots in the hot room, occupied by large gentlemen adorned with towels (of course, Turkish) about their middles, reading The Police Gazette and quaffing an occasional glass of water brought by an attendant who was invariably called Mack. And the bather would leave the establishment reeking with his sense of virtue, feeling that he had made all obligations to Hygieia, and prepared to light candles on the altar of Bacchus.

Long Hot Baths
Them wicked days is gone forever, in most localities. The American domestic bath tub killed the Turkish bath, just as certainly as if the two countries had gone to war. And the American hot bath is only a less glorified and usually less prolonged Turkish bath, so we can apply the question to hot bathing. And many people with high blood pressure take long hot baths with the idea that they are taking a cure.

The only feature of the Turkish bath not reproduced by the American hot tub is the hot air room where often the temperature was up to 150 to 170 degrees Fahrenheit.

Of course, during the reign of Benjamin Harrison, the then Captains of Industry used to die like flies in Turkish baths. Undertakers always used to send Christmas presents to rubbers in these establishments. The worst feature of the prolonged hot bath for the high blood pressure patient is the rebound that occurs when the bath is over, sending the pressure higher than ever. Better take hot baths in small short doses.

The low blood pressure patient has his pressure lowered even more by a hot bath, but the subsequent reaction is beneficial.

CHAPTER TWENTY
EVEN THOUGH she was impatient to talk with Tod Patrick, Mallory did not mind that the days of instantaneous long distance telephone calls had been swallowed by war priorities. The interval of waiting gave her time to get still more angry, to fill her mind with what she was going to say to him. Also, it gave her the time to get better acquainted with her lavish apartment.
There were no tourist-style furnishings, no mats, tin lamps, gaudy serapes, feather pictures. Instead, there were valuable pieces of carved furniture, massive and ancient, that somehow worked. In addition, there were the brand new white plaster walls, and the light woodwork. There were two good paintings by some Mexican artist, a wood-carved Madonna, a handsome gold-framed mirror, some pieces of Bohemian glass. That was the living room. The other rooms were proportionately beautiful.
Prism was shuffling about in total possession as if she had lived there always. "Take your bath now," she ordered the girl. "I got it all run and two of them fizz cubes in it. The pink kind like that I like."
"All right," Mallory replied absently, and walked in the opposite direction. She went out on the balcony and gazed down at Reforma boulevard.
Although there was no moon, the night was bright with stars, lights from the street and automobile lamps, and the glitter of hotel and apartment windows. Cars moved as swiftly as on Michigan avenue toward Chapultepec park on the side where Mallory looked down, toward Juarez avenue and the downtown sections, on the opposite side of the wide boulevard. There was a continuous swinging of traffic about the "glorias"—immense circular plots built around decorative statues or monuments that are spotted regularly along the famous street.
Prism trailed the girl. "You get in there and take that bath before all the perfume fizz gets out of it."
"I will, I will," Mallory's impatience melted as she looked downward again. "Isn't this an exciting town, Prism? Where we were earlier tonight was as primitive as ancient Spain. This is as cosmopolitan as anything around Central park. It's so exhilarating. Prism," Prism predicted gloomily, "Standin' out here in 'rothin' but three yards of silk. Gettin' so slap-happy you ain't even got sense enough to put on your coat."
"Very well, Prism, I'll go in." With reluctance the girl turned away from the scene below her. "You know, you're a worse slave driver than Tod Patrick."
"Mr. Patrick's a mighty smart man—well he is!" she yelled in defiance of her mistress' frigid glance.
Mallory did not bother to berate her manager to Prism. She was saving her petulance for the telephone call. However, to ease herself to some extent, she said in the manner of a rebellious child, "I'm going back out on the balcony later."

"Not after your bath, you ain't." Not for 'bout an hour 'til you get dried out." The colored woman was herding the girl into the rose and black tiled bathroom. "Sides, you got to have dinner. Probably won't be fit to eat," she bemoaned. "But tomorrow I'll get out for groceries and start cookin' for you myself."
At a little before 11 o'clock the call to New York went through. Wrapped in a woolen, squirrel-trimmed housecoat, Mallory took pleasure in making Tod Patrick hold the wire while she settled herself in deep comfort in an armchair.
"Hello, Legree," she eventually ground out. "I feel it my duty to tell you that you're licked before you start. I'm in fine fettle. I'm strong as an ox. I'm rarrrr! to go. I've just had a nourishing snack that included everything from a juicy steak to chocolate cake with icing an inch thick. And you'd better—" Tod Patrick's voice cut in. It sounded bored. "Mallory, are you telephoning me over 2,000 miles to tell me you're still a girl-ton?"
"I simply meant that I have strength to annihilate you."
Again Patrick interrupted. "Why did you call, Mallory? Not that I'm anything but delighted to hear from you. But I thought you were so angry with me when you left New York that I'd not be honored even with a hotel advertising postcard. I didn't dream you cared so much, dear."
"I'm not calling because I care for you—you know perfectly well why I'm calling you—you leech-blooded serpent!"
"It has been proved that snakes and such are not cold. And now let's not talk any more about such unpleasant things. You might have nightmares. And since you went to Mexico to relax you mustn't have nightmares."
"I am having a nightmare," the girl screamed so loudly that Prism cringed and clamped her eyelids. "I'm seeing things, Legree. All over the town. Posters, billboards—so how can I relax? You're driving me crazy, and don't you dare make a sassy remark!" Her tone changed to one of pleading. "Aw, Tod, how could you do it to me?"
"Haven't you any sense at all, Mallory? Right now, Mexico City is definitely it. It's Paris, the Riviera, all the European hot spots tossed together, to say nothing of being Santa Anita. Man alive, Mallory, they paid two million dollars for that new race track. You don't have to drag out your ration book for a sirloin steak the size of a turkey platter. Naturally the town has everyone in it who has the money to get there. Big spenders. A boom. A spree. So, why shouldn't it be the spot for the greatest singer of the present day—meaning you, Sweet, he stressed in a sugary voice.
"Don't talk to me as if you were trying to cheat an eight-year-old brat out of his candy bar."
"I'm just trying to talk some business sense into a 26-year-old adult."
"Twenty-five!" contradicted the girl so loudly that Prism, who

Alabama

Interesting to Circleville friends will be news of the wedding of Miss Mary Joanne Conyers and Technical Sergeant Wayland Hamilton Stevens, an event of January 1, in the Parker Memorial Baptist church of Anniston, Alabama. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett E. Brown of Plain City, formerly of Circleville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wayland F. Stevens of Forest, Miss.

The Rev. Charles R. Bell, Jr., a friend of the bridegroom, read the single ring ceremony before an altar decorated with banked greenery and white lilies, and lighted with tall tapers in seven-branched candelabra. Mrs. Frank Kirby, organist, presented a program of nuptial music preceding and following the ceremony.

For her marriage, Miss Conyers wore a frock of poudre blue wool. Her head-dress was an arrangement of tulle with a coronet of paper white narcissi, and she carried a colonial bouquet of white narcissi centered with two white orchids and showered with streamers.

Mrs. Earl C. Hickie of Washington, C. H., matron of honor and only attendant for the bride, wore a gown of gold crepe. Her head-dress, similar to that worn by the bride, was made of Winter chrysanthemums. She carried a matching bouquet.

After the wedding service, the bride and groom were seated at a reception at the Jefferson-Davis Hotel in Anniston, Ala.

Some years back D. E. Stevenson wrote two delightful stories of characters in Silverstream, "Miss Buncle's Book" and "Miss Buncle Married." We were afraid that character had become lost in the stress of wartime England, but here is a new one about that same irrepressible Barbara Buncle and her niece—"The Two Mrs. Abbotts." Barbara Abbott is our same Miss Buncle of the old Silverstream days with her own golden boy Simon who could remember when there were bananas and cream in England. A delightful book full of sparkle and zest.

Jesus Answers His Critics

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 16 is Mark 2:15-3:35. The Golden Text being Matt. 5:11. "Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.")

YOU REMEMBER our last lesson ended when Jesus called Levi, the publican, to follow Him. We know Levi as Matthew.

Matthew made a great feast for Jesus at his house and many were invited, including, probably, some publicans who had been associated with Levi in collecting taxes from their countrymen for the Roman masters. The Pharisees, those chronic enemies of Jesus, and the scribes, asked His disciples, "How is it that He eateth with publicans and sinners?" The word "sinners" does not mean that any of these men were guilty of crimes, but that they were not accepted by the orthodox Jewish church as acceptable from their legalistic standpoint.

Jesus' answer was one of the most precious in the whole record of His teaching. He said, "They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but the sinners to repentance."

Pharisees Silenced
That silenced them on that point, but immediately they asked why Jesus' disciples did not fast. The disciples of John the Baptist and the Pharisees fasted, why not his? Jesus answered that He, the Bridegroom, was with them, so why should they fast frequently? The law ordered a fast once a year, but the Pharisees had multiplied fast days so that they fasted twice a week, and even the disciples of John (then in prison) had fasted frequently.

One day He, their Master, would not be with them, and then they could fast oftener, but in His presence there was no need to fast, but to be joyful. You don't sew a rent in an old garment with new material, do you? He asked, or put new wine into old bottles? Old bottles would be worn and the fermentation of the new wine would burst them, so new wine would go into new bottles that would stretch and hold it.

One Sabbath Jesus and His disciples were walking in a grain field near Capernaum, where most of these scenes took place. As the men walked and talked some of them picked the grains of wheat and ate them. This was another way of breaking the strict Jewish laws, according to the scribes and Pharisees. "Behold, why do

Over 100 men, who attended the annual Ashville-Lockbourne Lutheran Brotherhood banquet Wednesday, pronounced it "one of the best ever". Music was furnished by Ellen Johnson, Conrad Johnson, Billy Speakman, Jerry Trego, Jack Irwin, and Jim Irwin. The principal speaker, Prof. Catterman of Capital University, entertained with his witty speech entitled "Just Around the Corner". Prof. Catterman's theme was that he didn't know just what was around the corner but that he was certain that it would be something different and better than the present. The Toastmaster, C. A. Higley, called on several local people for extemporaneous remarks. Among those responding were: E. F. Martin, E. C. Hefey, James Hefey, Rev. H. D. Fudge, Will W. Fischer, S. J. Bowers, James Barch, Harry Margulis, Paul Kuhlwein, and Rev. H. O. Harbaugh.

The height of something or other was reached recently when the clerk of the Yuma, Arizona, Superior Court received a request from a Los Angeles man for a certified copy of a marriage license issued in 1939 to himself and "a lady whose name I have forgotten".

ASHVILLE
Supt. C. A. Higley announced Friday that the elementary grades had collected over two tons of scrap paper, 1/2 ton of iron, and about 250 pounds of rubber during the last three weeks. These youngsters have exhibited quite a bit of enthusiasm in their efforts to aid the scrap drive and some classes have done remarkably well. The drive will be concluded Tuesday; anyone having waste paper or other scrap material should get in touch with some of the grade youngsters before that date.

ASHVILLE
D. H. Ebert has returned from a six-weeks' visit with his son, Charles, at Los Angeles, California.

ASHVILLE
Charles Glick, well-known farmer residing east of Ashville for many years, suffered a fatal heart attack Friday evening. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Dora A. Baum of Ashville.

LAMOTTA TAKES ZIVIC IN DETROIT CONTEST

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 15—Jake La Motta, of the Bronx, N. Y., won his third decision over Walterweight Fritz Zivic of Pittsburgh in Detroit's Olympia stadium last night.

A crowd of ten thousand fans saw a nip and tuck battle throughout the ten rounds, although La Motta's youth and weight advantage began to tell on 33-year-old Zivic by the seventh round. Two rounds went to Zivic on low blows thrown by La Motta.

Jake weighed 159 to Zivic's 151 1/2. They had met three times previously; twice in Pittsburgh and once in New York with La Motta winning twice.

ARMSTRONG BY KAYO

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 15—Hammerin' Hank Armstrong put himself in line for a crack at Sammy Angott's N. B. A. lightweight championship crown by knocking out Aldo Spoldi, Italian slugger, in the third round of a ten-round bout in Portland, last night. Armstrong weighing 138 pounds, lowered a dusky cloud of flailing fists over 141-pound Spoldi. The storm never lifted until the Italian batter lay sprawled through the ropes one minute and 39 seconds after the third round opened.

HOPPE LEAD CUT

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—Welker Cochran reduced Champion Willie Hoppe's lead in their three-cushion billiard exhibition match to 40 points today after winning two of yesterday's three blocks. Bucks Swamp Hoosier Team, 72-46, With Don Grate Piling Up 21

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
The Bollermakers from Purdue and the Wildcats from Northwestern shared the lead in the Big Ten basketball race today by virtue of their third victories against no defeats in the race for the Western Conference championship.

Purdue swept over Minnesota at Lafayette, Ind., last night to a 51 to 38 win, while the Wildcats overwhelmed the Maroons from Chicago university 77 to 20.

In the two other Big Ten games last night, Ohio State beat Indiana 72 to 46 in Columbus, and Wisconsin drove to victory over Michigan, winning 50 to 41, in a game which drew 8,000 fans to Wisconsin's fieldhouse.

Purdue's fast breaking attack gave them a continuous lead in a close contest. Paced by Bill Lodge, Purdue center, the Bollermakers then rang up several extra baskets in the final minutes to give them the 13 point victory. It was Minnesota's third conference loss and left her at the bottom of the standings.

Chicago's defeat was its 42nd consecutive conference loss. The Wildcats, led by Capt. Otto Graham, and Nick Voldick, forwards, so dominated the court that for 14 minutes of the first half the Maroons went scoreless. Northwestern led at the half 43 to 5. All 18 members of the Purple squad saw action.

Ohio State opened its big ten season by revealing a powerful offense, running up a 40 to 16 half time lead and then coasting the rest of the way.

Captain Don Grate led the Buckeye attack with 10 field goals and a free throw for 21 points. Arnold Risen, the 6 foot 8 inch center, who did not play the entire game, counted eight baskets and a free throw. Indiana's top scorer was forward Paul Shields with nine points.

Michigan and Wisconsin quintets played a fast game throughout although the Badgers had the edge most of the time. They counted a 25 to 20 lead at the half, mainly because of the accurate shooting of Ray Patterson, their center, who made nine baskets and a free throw in all.

The victory gave Wisconsin a .500 standing with two wins and two losses. Michigan has won one game and lost two.

LARKIN, RUFFIN DRAW

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—A brilliant rally in the last half of the contest earned Tippy Larkin, of Garfield, N. J., a draw today with Bobby Ruffin, New York lightweight, in their 10-round battle at Madison Square Garden last night. The customers didn't quite agree with the decision, however letting loose with a barrage of catcalls and boos. They figured that Larkin's uphill fight in the late rounds won him the nod over Ruffin, a 7-6 underdog in pre-fight odds.

DE PAUL DECLINES BID

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—De Paul university athletic officials today declined an invitation to participate in a college-professional basketball game in Washington, D. C., February 8. The game was to be part of the celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday and was to bring together the nation's outstanding college basketball team and the world champion pro five, the Washington Bears. De Paul officials said schedule difficulties would not permit the Blue Demons to make the trip.

RED AND BLACK SCORES 53- S. C. O. VICTORY

Washington C. H. Unable Stop Tigers; Signs Piles Up 24 Counters

Circleville high Tigers poured the coal Friday night in a tumbled contest with the less Washington C. H. Blue. The game, played in C. A. ended with a score of 53-31. The victory gives the Tigers three wins and one loss record, the South Central Ohio league with the disputed Wilmington game last week being counted the victory side.

Washington C. H. had a bunch of willing boys, but a bunch of willing boys, by Wild Bill Rudduck, paced his team's attack, doing most of the blocking, outchasing his opponents on many occasions and coming up with some tackling. Despite his tactics was able to remain in the game until only a minute or two remained, before his fourth person was called.

The Tigers started out to holding an 11-4 edge at the quarter and a 22 to 14 lead at the half. As the game progressed, Washington became weaker and the gingers pulled farther ahead. In third cant, the local lads up 13 against eight points, and the last frame 18 more were added against 12 for the opponents.

Sims Piles Up 24
Leon Sims, Tiger captain, piled both teams with 24 points, amassed on six buckets and free throws. Sims was held out on action goal in the first half getting six free tosses. But in last two quarters he poured leather into the hoop.

The Tiger sophomore made a free throw, then missed two, connected for the next ten in row.

The Tiger team scored a split did percentage of tosses, 29-30 the ball through the hoop 23 times in 30 attempts.

Red and Black reserves play brilliantly, too, to win a 41 to preliminary from Washington. Steele, Clark and Straws, most of the scoring for the winners.

In a 6:30 o'clock preliminary, second Tiger reserves won 39 to 31 from Charlie Gilt's Emery outfit, comprised mostly of 9th graders.

Next Friday night will find Circleville at Hillsboro, playing against a team turned back early in the season.

FISHING RULES UNCHANGED BY OHIO COMMISSION

State Conservation commission announced Saturday that there will be no change in fishing regulations in 1944. The commission conducted its law-establishing meeting Friday in Columbus, and decided that regulations were satisfactory.

A post-war conservation and game discussion session was postponed for a month.

It was indicated that the commission intends to expand its fish and game propagation program when announcement was made that $6,000, had been appropriated as the division's share in 1944 operation of both the Ohio Wildlife Research station at Ohio State university and the Stone laboratory at Put-in-Bay, and also approved 12 new small game refuge ponds and two additional farm pond agreements.

The department obtained more than 5,500 acres of land for the wildlife restoration division activity at a cost of $59,677. About 75 percent of the expenditures will be refunded to the state division from federal taxes on sale of arms and ammunition in the state.

Pickaway County's Political Pot Showing Signs Of Action

ONLY TRIO OF OFFICES NOT TO BE CONTESTED

Numerous Citizens Seen As Likely Candidates At Primaries

LOUIS WILL RUN AGAIN

Present Officials Likely To Ask Indorsement Of Voters

The 1944 political pot has started to bubble in Pickaway county in the last few days with much activity to be observed between now and March 9, final day for filing nominating petitions.

Elections board has reported no general movement by candidates toward obtaining petitions, but numerous Pickaway countians have been mentioned during the last week as possible candidates for office.

In the entire courthouse set-up there are only three elective positions which will not be subject to the primary and the general November election.

Only position not subject to the election this year will be common pleas court judge, held by Meeker Terwilliger for two more years since his election in 1940 for a six year term; county auditor, the post being held by Forrest Short, and one commissioner post, filled by Lyman Penn, who was elected in 1940 for four years. Mr. Short is serving a term of the same length.

Primary May 9

The primary will be conducted May 9, all petitions to be filed with the election board at least 60 days prior to this date.

So far, no present holder of a county office has made a definite announcement concerning his candidacy, although several have been testing the political trend in the county in the last few days.

Herbert E. Louis of New Holland, Republican serving his first two year term as county representative in the general assembly, has stated definitely that he will run again. Mr. Louis put himself on record at the Township Trustees' association meeting last week in Memorial Hall when he promised his "continued support and cooperation if I am returned to the assembly."

Positions subject to the ballot box in May and again in November include:

Probate judge, served by Lemuel B. Weldon, who is finishing his first full term after being named to fill an unexpired term of the late Charles C. Young. Mr. Weldon is a Republican.

RUSSIANS AND UNRRA

Courteous Soviet Ambassador Gromyko dropped in to see Relief Administrator Herbert Lehman, ex-Governor of New York, the other day and said to him:

"I want you to meet your new deputy general, Mikhail Alekseevich Menshikov."

Governor Lehman murmured that he was delighted, chatted pleasantly for several minutes. Then the two Russians left.

Afterward, Governor Lehman, who is slightly hard of hearing, got to wondering about the "new deputy general." He wasn't quite sure that he had heard Ambassador Gromyko correctly. Particularly, he wasn't sure of what organization Menshikov was to be deputy general. Was it, by any chance, UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration) for which Lehman is supposed to appoint the deputies.

So Governor Lehman called in his assistant, Phil Hammer, and asked him to find out. Lehman had already appointed Roy Hendrickson of the Food Distribution Administration as one of his deputies, and Sir Arthur Salter, British economist and shipping expert, as another. He did not know that he was to have a Russian deputy also.

Hammer invited Menshikov to lunch. During the lunch, he didn't want to ask point blank of what organization his guest was deputy general, but he did his best to work round to the point diplomatically. Finally, he found out. Menshikov had been appointed by the Russian Government to serve under Lehman as deputy general of UNRRA.

The Russians either had been very naive in sending Menshikov over without any advance announcement, or else this was their way of gently notifying Governor Lehman that his organization was going to be one of the most important in the world and that they wanted Russia represented in a high-up post.

Whichever is correct, there is no question about the tremendous political power of the Relief Administration. By withholding food and clothing from Greeks who oppose the Greek king, for instance, Lehman could exert influence as to who would be the ruler of Greece. By sending food and clothing to Tito's followers in Yugoslavia, or by favoring Mikhailovich's men, UNRRA could change the whole political picture in Yugoslavia.

No wonder the Russians carefully picked their man to sit at Governor Lehman's right hand and promptly sent him to Washington.

ARMY AIR BASE MARKS FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Saturday marked the first anniversary of the founding of the B-17 central instruction school of the Army air forces training command at Lockbourne army air base.

The school, largest of its kind in the command, was organized by Lt. Col. Audrin R. Walker of Los Angeles, Cal., who went to Lockbourne with a small staff and a number of planes from Hendricks field, Fla., the original B-17 training center.

Colonel Walker, who still directs the training program at Lockbourne, was lauded Saturday by Colonel John S. Gullet, base commander, for his work in the last year when hundreds of pilots for the masterful bombers were turned out. Most of these men are now flying B-17s in the various combat zones.

Colonel Walker has been in the air corps almost seven years.

The colonel received his orders to form the school at Lockbourne at noon January 15, 1943, and immediately flew his staff and equipment from Hendricks field to Lockbourne. He and his outfit arrived in 12 hours with all equipment, a feat which brought him commendation from his superiors.

NEW TOKEN SYSTEM TO SAVE RETAILERS MONEY

The new token system of point rationing which becomes effective February 27 will save $35,000,000 a year in bookkeeping and clerical expenses for retail stores throughout the nation.

This estimate was disclosed Saturday by Walter Straub, national director of food rationing.

Straub said the system will make shopping easier for the housewife as well, since she will not have to take her whole ration book to the store if she makes a small purchase.

Expansion of School Gymnasium Facilities Shows Good Progress

Expansion of Circleville high school's gymnasium facilities so that each boy in the upper five grades will be provided instruction and exercise under members of the physical education department is being speeded.

J. Wray Henry, high school principal, said Saturday that some of the equipment has been put in place and is ready for service, while other items which have been ordered have not yet arrived. A striking bag platform has been built, but the bag itself has not yet been received.

The program is being carried on with the sponsorship of the board of education, which has been buying equipment asked by the athletic department.

Included in the gymnasium equipment ordered by the board are scales, striking bag and platform, volley ball posts and nets, mats, tumbling belt, goal-hi's, and numerous books for the library on physical education.

CRITICAL STAGE OF GAS EMERGENCY IS PAST

Serious Shortage to Continue Indefinitely

Milder weather has made possible easing some of the restrictions under which we have asked you to use gas during the emergency of the last few days. The situation continues to be so serious from the standpoint of the gas supply that it is hoped this message will not be taken as a signal to use gas on an unrestricted basis. For months we have advised our customers of the growing shortage.

This gas shortage continues and will become progressively more serious as the winter advances. The production of gas from the wells declines in proportion to the gas taken from them. In normal times we find opportunities to rest our wells — shutting some of them off to allow more gas to accumulate at the well. This practice permits taking greater than normal amounts of gas from the wells during short periods when peak demands are made upon us. In recent weeks there have been but few opportunities to shut off reserve wells to increase the volume that could be secured when demands were greater.

The War Production Board is making an effort to locate additional gas for us from other areas but such relief cannot be counted upon unless and until this gas is secured.

As winter advances emergency conditions may occur during increasingly mild weather. It is possible that it will be necessary to declare an emergency condition when average daily temperatures are only 20 degrees this month — perhaps as warm as 25 degrees next month. It is doubtful that we will be able to furnish normal supplies of gas at 35 degrees in March.

The problems of maintaining adequate pressures in distribution lines and preventing gas outages to our customers will be a serious threat in all emergencies. Every cubic foot of gas that you can save for the remainder of the winter will help lessen the frequency and severity of these occasions. To date this winter relatively few industries engaged in war work have been affected by the gas shortage. As more severe weather is experienced emergencies will arise which certainly will force curtailment of additional industries — many of them engaged in critical war work. Your continued efforts to save gas each day will hold these interruptions to a minimum.

The War Production Board and the War Department join us in expressing sincere appreciation for the fine cooperation you are giving in this critical situation.

Having seen the fine cooperation which you gave in the recent emergency, it is hoped that more and more customers can be counted upon to start at once restricting their day-to-day uses of gas in the following manner:

HEATING

Conscientiously make 65 degrees your accepted wartime living temperature.

Close off every part of your home or place of business that you can do without.

Depend entirely upon coal or oil if either of these is the regular method of heating your premises.

Those who use gas ovens, radiators or other gas heaters to supplement heating plants using coal or oil are perhaps the greatest threat to gas service under present conditions. When tempted to use gas heat for such purposes, ask yourself if the room cannot be shut off instead. You are counted upon not to use gas for supplemental heating.

WATER HEATING

Be very conservative in your use of hot water. Do not use it wastefully just because it is available.

Those with manually controlled heaters should turn up the flame only when hot water is needed for laundry or bathing, then reduce the flame or turn it out as quickly as possible.

Avoid washing hands or dishes in running hot water.

COOKING

Combine as much of your cooking as possible so that more food can be cooked with the same amount of gas.

Use oven instead of several top burners when preparing more than one hot dish.

Do not turn the gas higher than is needed to maintain cooking temperatures.

Turn out gas immediately when cooking is finished.

Your self-restricted uses of gas as outlined above will show continued support of the war effort as well as a determined interest in helping maintain your gas service. We still advise that you make arrangements with a neighbor for gaining entrance to your home in case a gas outage occurs when you are away. Also, you are asked to be alert continually for the next gas emergency which may come at any time.
